

Sat. April 11. 4:30 pm

Ceci n'est pas un musée will screen three short films by the great puppet animators Stephen and Timothy Quay —The Quay Brothers.

Street of Crocodiles (1986, 21 min.)

An astonishing rendering of the 1933 novel-memoir by the Polish writer and artist Bruno Schulz with soundtrack by Polish composer Lech Jankowski.

The Unnamable Little Broom (1985, 11 min.)

"Being a largely disguised reduction of the Epic of Gilgamesh"

Rehearsals For Extinct Anatomies (1987, 14 min.)

"These doors have been engraved with great modesty and dedicated to London Underground as part of its present evangelical rampage.

And to the single still dreaming hair on his brow with its desire to disturb the wallpaper"

If you have never seen these films before you are in for a thrilling (if slightly disturbing) surreal treat.