

LA CIUDAD ABIERTA — an illustrated lecture by Natalija Subotincic.

La Ciudad Abierta, the Open City, is an extraordinary collective construction in the sand dunes of Ritoque, Chile. It was founded in the early 1960's by a group of architects, designers, and poets associated with the architecture school of the Catholic University of Valparaiso. Despite its 60 year history and radical architectural experiments, the work of the Open City is still relatively unknown in North America. In this lecture, Natalija Subotincic will share her knowledge of this poetic city, gained from her time living with this remarkable collective.
